Virtual Desktop Manager is a free desktop panel replacement that changes the Windows desktop into a virtual desktop workspace. It can be installed as a standalone application, or integrated into a Windows application. It can be used with any running window, or can be setup to run when the computer boots up. It supports multiple users, multiple virtual desktops, and a wide variety of shortcuts to help users work more efficiently. Virtual Desktop Manager can monitor and adjust the performance of the CPU, RAM, disk space and network. It features a memory manager that can adjust the memory access and usage patterns of applications and windows. Compatibility notes: Virtual Desktop Manager requires Windows Vista, or Windows 7 or later. Virtual Desktop Manager requires Windows 8.1 or Windows 10 Pro. If you are using Firefox, you can install a user-agent switcher called "Jump Agent" to help you gain access to various websites. Once installed, you would simply need to download the user-agent switcher every time Firefox or any other applications (i.e. Chrome, Opera, etc.) ask for your browser and operating system information. If you are already aware of this issue, here are the steps to configure it. If not, please read the entire guide to learn how to use it: Open the Windows "Control Panel" and click "Add or Remove Programs" to open the "Add or Remove Programs" window. Next, select "Firefox" in the left pane. Uncheck "Hide from add or remove programs" and "Hide in the notification area" Click "Apply" and "OK" Click "OK" twice to close the "Add or Remove Programs" window. Go b7e8fd5c8
